The 90-minute flow

Designed for a living-room table or community studio. Keep a visible timer; the host can flex the gallery or closing by a few minutes.

00–08	Arrive & settle Place a name card. Invite guests to pick a seat and browse the materials.
08–14	Welcome & show the plan Say: “Tonight is about making together, not matching. You can pass, adapt, or observe.”
14–31	01 · Shared Current Build one layered paper landscape, one piece at a time.
31–34	Clear & reset Return scraps to the center tray; leave the mural visible.
34–51	02 · Signal Flags Each guest designs a pennant; arrange the flags into one shared garland.
51–54	Clear & reset Set finished flags aside. Place a fresh sheet and mini-cards at each seat.
54–71	03 · Pocket Museum Make tiny art tiles, then curate one collective tabletop gallery.
71–80	Walk the gallery Read a few maker notes. Each guest may share, point, or pass.
80–90	Close & tidy Choose a photo / take-home plan, then use the 4-minute reset checklist.

> Facilitator cue: give a 2-minute warning before each transition. If arrivals run late, trim the gallery walk; keep all three making rounds short and low-pressure.

01 / Shared Current

A paper landscape that grows by layering.

01

ONE TABLE · MANY HANDS

Set out: One large base sheet · scrap paper · marker · tape or glue

1. Lay a first shore
   Each maker chooses one scrap and adds it to the base. Leave some porcelain-colored space open.
2. Add a current
   Take turns adding a long line or torn strip that crosses at least two colors. It can bend, stop, or split.
3. Mark a meeting place
   Each person draws one small symbol where two pieces meet. No need to explain it.
4. Name the map
   Together choose a title; write it on a small scrap and place it at the edge.

HOST PROMPT

“Where could this line go next?” Ask before moving a piece another maker placed.

Gentle variation: work in pairs, use torn edges, or simply point while a partner places a piece. Stop at the timer; unfinished work still belongs in the gallery.

Done when: everyone has had one turn, the shared piece can be viewed together, and no one is waiting for a “right” answer.
